Foreword

The following directory is designed to supplement the online version of the directory located at <http://150.131.32.168/mmis/WA/>. The directory provides an alphabetical listing of value added wood products producers in the State of Washington by manufacturing category. Value added wood products processors are defined for purposes of this directory as those producing wood-based products, which require additional processing beyond the production of basic solid wood products such as lumber, plywood, and oriented strand board. Value added wood products include a wide array of high as well as low value items manufactured in whole or in part from wood-based materials. Examples include furniture, cabinets, musical instruments, pallets, burial caskets, and toys. This is an important segment of Washington's wood products industry, but one which is frequently overlooked due the comparatively small size of these firms and lack of readily available economic data with which to characterize this sector of the economy. Yet, this segment of Washington's economy provides a wide array of jobs in rural as well as the urban areas of the state.

The authors' gratefully acknowledge funding support from the Inland Northwest Forest Products Research Consortium, a research cooperative centered at the Forest Products Department at the University of Idaho, the Bureau of Business and Economic Research at the University of Montana-Missoula and the Wood Materials and Engineering Laboratory at Washington State University and the Center for International Trade in Forest Products at the University of Washington's College of Forest Resources. The authors would also like to thank the Bureau of Business and Economic Research at the University of Montana-Missoula for their assistance in the development of the contents of the directory.
